1.1.1 Alcohol & the Body

Alcohol is primarily absorbed into the bloodstream through the intestines. The bloodstream carries the alcohol to the brain resulting in progressive impairment.

Blood Alcohol Concentration (BAC) is a measure of the amount of alcohol in the bloodstream. It is measured by the number of grams of alcohol per 100ml of blood. For example, a BAC of 0.05% means 0.05 grams of alcohol in every 100ml of blood.

1.1.1 Alcohol & the Body

The legal limit for BAC for fully licensed car drivers is below 0.05 (grams/100ml).

A BAC in excess of 0.15% can cause considerable impairment of the central nervous system.

Other drugs capable of impairing the central nervous system will increase the effects of alcohol in the brain.

You must be familiar with the legal driving limits as they apply to your state or territory.
